PREFACE.

In the accompanying report I have endeavored to account for everyone who at any time was a member of the class, and for that purpose have carefully examined the annual catalogues, the numbers of the "Bugle," etc., finding that in all fifty-six names have appeared on the roll of the class. Brown, Hastings, Lumbert and Williams never attended recitations with the class, leaving fifty-two to be accounted for, of whom twenty-eight received degrees at graduation and twenty-four left college without a degree (Hathaway, Libby, Martin, Nichols and Sawyer afterwards received a degree). Of those who graduated with the class, thirteen are residents of Maine, four of Massachusetts, two of California, one of each of the States of New Hampshire, Rhode Island, New York, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Wisconsin and Washington, and two are deceased. Of the others, ten are residents of Maine, four of Massachusetts, three of New Hampshire, two of New York, one of each of the States of Illinois, Colorado and Florida, and one deceased; residence unknown, one. As to profession, eleven of the graduates are lawyers, seven business men, three teachers, two editors, one a minister, one an engineer, and one a physician. Of the others, seven are business men, six physicians, four lawyers, two architects, one a clergyman, one an editor; occupation unknown, two. I have endeavored to state nothing but facts, leaving opinions, whether of praise or blame, to others. It may be noticed that some of the dates do not agree with the General Catalogue of the College, and can only say that I give them as given to me by those who ought to be most interested.

It is unfortunate that a greater number of portraits could not have been included in the group of recent pictures, as the comparison of this group with that composed of the class pictures would have had a still greater interest.

The class meeting will be held in Brunswick, Thursday, June 26th, and the class supper in the evening at the Falmouth Hotel in Portland.
